Before I am thinking that I can do all things as long as I am planning it right and accurate. I am became opened that I cannot do everything on my own, that I still need an advises, a shoulders, ears to listen to me and coach that is really an experienced with regard of the situation. I am shocked to find this book which have a "blueprint" on the title. I never thought that life coaching can have a blueprint and as I am reading it, I am realizing things in a beautiful and intelligent way. But at the same time we need our God in every decision we are making. Wisdom!

Picked up some valuable lessons in this book. I particularly enjoyed the section on the Batman Walk. Although I have come across a similar exercise to this in the past, this is the first time that I have seen it framed that way. It is an interesting take. The author also talks about clearing limiting beliefs which is an important aspect that you can apply to your life even if you aren't trying to become a life coach. Overall very pleased with the book, there are many lessons you can apply to your life regardless if you are pursuing to become a life coach or not.

This book talks about steps to being a life coach and also different concepts that could help someone's life such as power of personalities, how to create instant change, using pain & pleasure and state control. Overall, this book provides a positive outlook and encourages people to be the best versions of themselves!

I've been interested in becoming a life coach for a while now but wanted to learn more about how to do it before. This book has given me a good knowledge of how to go about starting out and taught me how life coaching is a very rewarding and motivational job and something I am more interested in doing. It teaches you different techniques and ways to help people become more and gives you a couple of exercises you can use such as the batman walk and morning questions. Overall a good guide to becoming a life coach and worth reading.
