A Spy On The Bus

Synopsis

An adventuresome eighteen-year-old college grad hires on with Greyhound Bus line in 1946 as a company spy. Her job is to pose as a passenger on the bus and spy on the bus drivers, reporting back any theft, reckless driving, drinking, or anything else that would endanger the passengers or interfere with the company's profits. Margean wrote daily letters home to her parents on the farm in Michigan describing her life as a company inspector and other details of her life on the road in the 1940's. This book is the collection of her letters unearthed in an attic in 2003. It's a doozy of a book.

Customer Reviews

For anyone in transportation, this is a must read. This may be a story from the past but the "checker" operation remains today.

Nice to have books that are well-written and about local goings on in years past. Margean Gladysz will be long remembered in our community.

very good book my wife and I read it together
